Childhood is somewhat free from worries. But when the child grows up into an adult or a youth. Countless desires start consuming him day by day. He knows neither rest nor peace of mind. The moment one desire is satisfied, another crops up in a never-ending vicious circle. In due course of time. Old age pounces upon him like a tiger. Physical strength and senses fail him. He trembles, as he tries to walk. His unfulfilled desires and passions tear him to pieces. Broken hearted and lespised by all his sons, daughter and wife. He breathes his last in great agony and is born again and again to fulfill his unfulfilled desires. The cycle is once again pedaled. He keeps on pedaling it till he realizes the immortality of his blissful soul. The Gita can rescue him from the cycle of births and deaths.
