Colours and numbers play a large part in many of our superstitions. People who believe in witches wear blue garments to protect themselves. A witch is a person who uses magic, often to harm others. In many cultures, people also believe that blue has the power to make wishes come true. Some people think that red protects against sickness and bad luck. Green is often thought to be an unlucky colour. Actors for example, try not to wear green colours while they are on stage. For the people who are superstitious about numbers, odd numbers are luckier than even numbers. The numbers three, seven and nine have special powers for good luck, but thirteen is very unlucky. In many places, tall buildings don't have a floor numbered thirteen.
