- 1) Pollution is the mixing of contaminants or harmful materials into the environment. These contaminants are called pollutants. Pollutants can be natural or man-made. Natural pollutants are volcanic ash and dust from storms. Pollutants are created by humans, such as industrial waste products and smoke from vehicles. Pollutants damage the quality of air, land, and water. Environmental pollution can be of four types, such as air, soil, water, and plastic waste pollution. Say no to plastic bags and carry your own bag while going to the market for purchases. It reduces smoke from industries. Keep the roads of Three neat and clean without any dirt particles. Encourage farmers to refrain from burning crop residues in their fields. Maximum use of public transport can reduce air pollution. Save the most electricity possible. Use products that can be recycled. The disposal of chemicals in drinking water should be avoided. Farmers should use fewer chemical fertilizers to save the land. To conclude, Evo Morales rightly said that the rights of the earth are to be formed to keep the earth livable for humans.
 - 2) Mahatma Gandhi, born on October 2, 1869, in Gujarat's Porbandar, was a strong advocate of the principles of Satya (truth) and Ahinsa (nonviolence), and taught us to value indigenous art. Bapu and his teachings are still relevant and treasured because our country was blessed with a man who made a name for himself in the world by practicing simplicity in everyday life. Mahatma Gandhi, affectionately known as Bapu, was the leader of India's freedom struggle. His birthday presents an opportunity for Indians all over the world. Mahatma Gandhi, affectionately called "Bapu," was the leader of India's freedom struggle. His birthday presents an opportunity for Indians all over the world. The occasion of his birthday allows Indians all over the world to reflect on his teachings, particularly the values of nonviolence and selfless service.

- 3) Yoga has become very popular among all sections of society, irrespective of caste, creed, and boundaries. People who do yoga daily can control so many diseases and have improved their health a lot. It has become a part of their life. Yoga is “not just about balance within the body or that between the mind and the body, but also balance in the human relationship with the world.” UN adds, “Yoga emphasizes the values of mindfulness, moderation, discipline, and perseverance. When applied to communities and societies, Yoga offers a path to sustainable living.” “Yoga for Humanity” is the right and appropriate theme for Yoga Day. To improve societal health, we should assist communities in practicing yoga. A healthy society keeps the nation at the top. Students, parents, and teachers should come forward to improve the health of our nation, and be a proud citizen of a healthy country.

"Physical exercise is essential for maintaining good health. Regular exercise helps to strengthen muscles, reduce the risk of chronic diseases like diabetes and heart disease, and improve mental health. Exercise can also help to promote weight loss and increase energy levels. However, it is important to approach exercise in a safe and responsible manner, with proper warm-ups and cool-downs, and to consult a healthcare provider before beginning a new exercise program."
